'Bojangles' broke barriers

By Jacqueline Cutler
TVDATA FEATURES WRITER

Gregory Hines' heavy-lidded eyes make him appear as if he's about to fall asleep. Yet his feet seem perpetually awake. He taps out rhythms faster than most people can comprehend.

And Hines is one of the few entertainers who does it all. He has headlined on Broadway, cut albums, starred in movies, had his own TV show and appeared in a recurring role as Ben Doucette, Will's boss, on "Will & Grace." At 7 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 4, he plays Bill "Bojangles" Robinson in Showtime's "Bojangles."

"He was two people," Hines says. "He was Bojangles, the happy tap dancer on screen. And he was Bill Robinson, with a terrible gambling problem and womanizing and he carried a gun. And, he didn't smile a whole lot."

Bojangles is most famous for movies he made with Shirley Temple, and specifically for tap dancing on stairs. "It looked pretty simple to me, and the stair dance looked like a breeze. He was left-footed and I am right-footed, and that was a real chore. It was a tremendous challenge to relearn the way I dance. And, once I went up those stairs enough times, I realized I was going to be an escalator man for some time."

What most people don't know is that Bojangles was to entertainment what Jackie Robinson was to baseball. He broke barriers. Robinson broke the rule requiring two black performers on the stage simultaneously and wiped off the blackface grease that blacks used to imitate whites imitating minstrel performers.

Natasha Richardson stars in 'Haven,' a two-part movie premiering at 8 p.m. Sunday and Wednesday on CBS

CBS' 'Haven' offers viewer lessons on acceptance

By Jacqueline Cutler
TVDATA FEATURES WRITER

While watching television on Sunday nights, it's particularly hard to shake the feeling that you shouldn't be lounging. Many people iron, organize the briefcase, pay bills, or otherwise prepare for the coming week. With CBS' "Haven," a beautifully told two-part movie airing Sunday and Wednesday, Feb. 11 and 14, turn off the lights, grab a box of tissues and just watch.

If children can stay up late, let them watch, too. Even people steeped in World War II history rarely know this true story about a smart Jewish Brooklynite who was chosen by Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes to escort Jewish refugees to the United States for what was supposed to be temporary haven.

Ruth Gruber, played by Natasha Richardson, was braver than she had any reason or right to be. Just as WWII vets are often so modest about their contributions toward saving the world from fascism, Gruber matter-of-factly took this job because she felt it was her duty. Hers is one of the many individual stories of pure heroism that continue to come forth 57 years later.

'Grammys' reflect the diversity of the music industry

By Stephen English
 TVDATA FEATURES WRITER

This year's battles for the golden gramophone promise to be bloody, especially with Madonna vs. U2, Britney vs. Christina and *NSYNC vs. the Backstreet Boys.

The awards show hasn't always been so hip, though. The Recording Academy was notoriously slow to acknowledge such trends as the mainstreaming of alternative rock, rap and heavy metal.

But last year's nominees made for a divergent bunch, ranging from Carlos Santana to Ricky Martin and Macy Gray to Sheryl Crow. This year's list, which sees Martin, Gray and Crow nominated again, is even more diverse.

Recording Academy President Michael Greene had the distinction of trying to cull 14 artists from the 960 nominees to perform for the live broadcast Wednesday, Feb. 21, on CBS.

"Now that we have 100 different categories, we have so much more to draw from," Greene says.

The nominees for album of the year demonstrate the range of this year's awards.

"From Paul Simon and Steely Dan on one side to Radiohead in the middle and Eminem over on the other side, our members are giving us a much broader template," Greene muses.

Judy Davis gives an unforgettable performance in 'Life With Judy Garland: Me and My Shadow' at 8 p.m. Sunday and Monday on ABC.

Davis soars in uncanny Garland portrayal

By John Crook

TVDATA FEATURES WRITER

Judy Davis is feeling a little spooked.

This in itself would be newsworthy, because the 45-year-old Australian actress is perhaps best known for the utter fearlessness that has earned her an Emmy Award and a pair of Oscar nominations.

On a recent winter afternoon, however, Davis is quiet and reflective as she tries to explain how she felt playing the title role in "Life With Judy Garland: Me and My Shadows." Her performance in the two-part, four-hour ABC movie, which airs Sunday and Monday, is an electrifying tour de force that nails the emotionally fragile singer-actress with a pinpoint accuracy that is both heartbreaking and hair-raising.

"It's still somewhat hard to put into words," Davis says carefully, "but I suppose it was as close to channeling as I have ever experienced. I wanted to capture the real soul of Judy Garland. Once I began to understand her, the other parts (in terms of voice and physical mannerisms) just seemed to come almost without thinking. It was very odd."
